Amidst serenity

A unique display

The mountains are calling and I must go. It's probably a line each wanderer must have sung or recited in their own way while looking to the mountains. So this March, when we again went over our packed bags and left for a quiet little village in Sikkim, known as pamphlet.

Almost 135 kilometres from Gangtok, the capital of the mountainous state, is a little village nestled in the midst of the Himalayas, known as pamphlet. Both green meadows, snowy mountains, and the earth that mold the sold, it calls. Sikkim is a beautiful mountainous region, home to the ancient Buddhist culture, Sikkim. It is a land of ascetics, saints, and natural wonders.

The journey to this little village in Sikkim, known as pamphlet, took about an hour and a half by road. The road to pamphlet is not for the faint-hearted, with steep, winding roads that will test even the most experienced drivers.

The village sits nestled in the lap of the mountains, surrounded by the beauty of nature. The air is fresh, the sky is clear, and the mountains are calling. It is a serene and peaceful place, away from the hustle and bustle of the city life during summers, making it the perfect getaway for all adventurers and nature lovers.

The village offers a wide range of activities for visitors, from hiking and trekking to bird-watching and photography. It is a paradise for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts.

One of the main attractions of the village is the bullet-shaped hut called pamphlet. It is a unique and interesting structure that serves as a shelter for hikers and trekkers. The hut is built in the shape of a bullet to represent the nearby battlefield of pamphlet, which took place during the Sino-Indian War.

The village also offers homestays, which provide a chance to experience the local culture and lifestyle. The homestays are run by local families and offer a glimpse into the traditional way of life in Sikkim.

The village is surrounded by beautiful landscapes, including the deep green pine forests, the crystal-clear rivers, and the stunning views of the Himalayan peaks. It is a perfect destination for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts.

The village is also known for its warm and hospitable people. The locals are welcoming and friendly, making visitors feel at home.

In conclusion, pamphlet is a beautiful little village in Sikkim, known as pamphlet. It is a perfect destination for nature lovers and outdoor enthusiasts who want to escape the hustle and bustle of city life and experience the beauty of nature.

Tribute to Bengal’s Bard

Rabindranath Tagore, the great Indian poet, was born on 7 May 1861, and on his 158th birth anniversary, celebrations were held in Kolkata.

The day started with a cultural programme organized by the Assamese literary group, Nabanna. The programme was attended by various dignitaries and celebrities, including the mayor of Kolkata, the chief minister of West Bengal, and the chief minister of Assam.

The programme included a variety of performances, including songs, dances, and recitations of Tagore’s poems. The performances were led by well-known artists and were received with great enthusiasm by the audience.

The programme concluded with a speech by the chief guest, who praised Tagore for his immense contribution to literature and culture. He emphasized the need to keep his work alive and continue his legacy.

The celebrations continued throughout the day with various events and performances, including a dance competition and a literature festival.

The noe of The Kabitascope was a colourful celebration of the great Indian poet, Rabindranath Tagore. It was a fitting tribute to his contributions to literature and culture, and a reminder of his timeless message of love, peace, and unity.
